Modernistic Club News

A very successful Homecoming was observed at Promise Land Baptist Church Sunday at the 11 o'clock service hour. Special guest for the hour was the Memorial Baptist Church pastor and choir from Washington, D.C. The church was filled for the morning worship. Immediately following morning service dinner was served by the Women of the Church.

A large number of members and friends from out of town attended services Sunday, as well as members and friends at home. The day was well spent. The church was well benefited spiritually, as well as financially at the close of the day.

Regular preaching service was held at First Baptist Church Sunday, at 11 a.m. A very impressive service was held. An appreciative audience turned out and the offering was good for the morning worship.

Sunday School was well attended at Galilee Baptist at 10 a.m., Supt. John A. Watson reported Sunday, Aug. 26th. Subject: "Redemptive Love In Action" James 1:22-27, Mark 2:16-17. Memory Selection—"Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ." Gal. 6:2.

The funeral service of the late John Eames was held at Chestnut Grove Baptist Church Sunday at 2 p.m. A large number of friends from Baltimore, Md., attended the service at Chestnut Grove, as well as relatives and friends from Appomattox. The community sympathizes deeply with the family in the loss of their loved one. We all loved John very much, but God knows what is best in this life for all of us, "May God take care of his family always."

We sympathize with the "Turner Family", in the loss of their loved one. "We commend you to one who knows what is best for us." One who is too wise to error, and too good to be unjust. God will take care of you."

In and out of town:

Mr. Robert Skates, Ms. Nettie Bumgardner, Messers Jim Tibbs, Mckinley Tibbs and other friends from Maryland attended the funeral services of the late John Eames Sunday.

Mr. and Ms. Fred Brown of Salem, en route from Tidewater section visited friends in Farmville and the Mr. Howard Stevens family in Historic Appomattox on their return home.

Lewis, and mother, Messres Peter Flood, Will Patterson, Leon Stokes, Luther Abbott, Hubert Flowers, Ms. Sarah Flowers, all of Baltimore, Md., and Ms. Katheleen Williams, Ms. Catherine Bennett and granddaughter, April, visited in the home of the Stevens, all from Elmhurst, N.Y., Ms. Judy Coleman, Philadelphia, Pa, visiting the Pankeys and McCoys; Ms. Frances Stathan, Brooklyn, N.Y., visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hamlet.

Mr. Lindsay Fleshman left for Richmond where he will attend Union University this fall.

Appomattox Historical Park Announces Winter Hours

Today Park Superintendent Bob Madden announced that beginning Tuesday, September 4, new opening and closing hours will go into effect at Appomattox Court House National Historical Park. Four of the Park buildings will be open for visitation by the public from 8:30 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. These buildings include the Courthouse, McLean House, Woodson Law Office, and the County Jail.

In addition, the Meeks Country Store will remain open through October 31, from 8:30 a.m. until 5:00 p.m., seven days a week. Beginning November 1, sales activities will cease and the store will revert to exhibit status until December 16. On this date, and up to and including December 24, the Store will again be open to accommodate the Park's extra visitation during the Christmas season. From December 26 until early Spring the Store will again serve only as an exhibit.

Park visitors are reminded that only on Christmas Day will all Park buildings be closed. However, as during the rest of the year, the Park grounds will be open 24 hours daily.

Am I Covered?

Q: I have some lovely trees and some old boxwoods in my yard which I had always assumed were insured under my homeowners. Now a friend says they are not. It would cost a small fortune to replace these, so they have a substantial value. Why are they not covered in my insurance, and how can I get them covered?

A: There would be some coverage available under the ordinary homeowners coverage for damage resulting from certain things. For instance, losses caused by fire, lightning, explosion, riot, civil commotion, vandalism, malicious mischief, theft, aircraft or vehicles not owned or operated by an occupant of the premises would be covered up to alimto of $250.00 per item and a total limit for all losses at one time of not more than 5% of the amount of the coverage on the dwelling insured on the same policy. In addition, this coverage would not apply to any trees, shrubs, plants or lawns grown for business purposes.

As you can see, you do not have coverage for all sources of the loss, but only for those mentioned above under your homeowners. The limitation as to amount may also be insufficient since the boxwoods and trees probably would be worth more than $250.00 each. In order to be fully covered for the value of the boxwoods and the trees, you should go to your agent who very probably can get insurance through a company who specializes in writing this type of insurance.

Q: My hub caps and gas cover have been stolen for the second time in a month while the car was parked in front of my apartment at night. How many times will my insurance pay to replace these items?

A: Your insurance coverage is not limited in this respect. It will respond to pay for actual thefts no matter how often they occur during the policy period. However, it is only logical that you should do what you can to prevent these claims if you know that your parking habits are exposing you to the claims and if there are precautions you can take to prevent them.

Q: While backing my car out of a friend's driveway, I went into a ditch on the side of the drive that I did not know was there. This ruined my muffler and tailpipe, put a hole in the gas tank, and bent my rear bumper guards. I had to get a tow truck to get out of the ditch. I think my collision will pay for this, but it will cause my insurance rate to go up because I am under 21. Couldn't my friend get her parents to claim this damage under their homeowners policy? This would not affect their insurance cost, would it?

A: The only coverage that would be available to you under the friend's homeowners policy would be under the liability portion. This would mean that your friend must be legally liable to you for the damage to your automobile before her homeowners coverage would make any payments. From the facts you have cited, it would appear that you cannot overcome your responsibility of making sure the way was clear before you backed up even though you were not aware of the fact that the ditch was there. In short, there would be, in my opinion, no available coverage under your friend's homeowners policy. If there were, however, her insurance rates would not increase. Your own recourse is to place a claim under the collision coverage of your policy, which will respond to the amount of claim above any deductible you may have. Also, you may have towing coverage on your policy which would pay the towing charge if the claim does not exceed your deductible. Towing coverage is not subject to a deductible but is a separate coverage and must be purchased in addition to collision coverage, comprehensive coverage and liability coverage which are the usual coverages ordinarily taken out in automobile insurance.

Q. I recently surprised my grandson with a savings account for his birthday. When I went to the bank to open the account, the bank clerk said she needed my grandson's social security number for the bank's records. Why was this necessary?

A. The bank reports earned interest over $10 a year to the Internal Revenue Service by the name

OCTOBER IS
RESCUE SQUAD MONTH

Q. I'll be 72 this year. How much can I earn during 1973 and still get my full monthly social security payments?

A. You can earn as much as $2,100 for the months of 1973 before the month you reach 72. No matter how much you earn in that period, however, you can get your full social security payment for any month you neither earn over $175 nor do substantial work in self-employment. After you're 72, your social security payments will not be affected by your earnings.
